DETAILED ACTION

The indicated allowability of claims 38-44 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Chao et al., US 2002/0106845. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 38-44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chao et al., US 2002/0106845.

Chao et al. shows the invention substantially as claimed including a method of forming a rounded corner of a trench of a workpiece in a vacuum plasma chamber, comprising converting a gas species that is supplied to the chamber into an etchant plasma that is continuously applied to the workpiece while the rounded corner is being formed, and changing the power applied to the etchant plasma while the rounded corner is being formed (see paragraphs 0048-0049 and fig. 4D).

Chao et al. does not expressly disclose gradually changing the power applied to the etchant plasma such that the power does not remain constant for durations in excess of one second and at the same time maintaining constant the pressure in the chamber, the flow rate in the chamber, and the species flowing into the chamber. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to determine through routine experimentation the manner in which the power is changed and whether the pressure, flow rate, or species flowing into the chamber is constant or changed based upon a variety of factors including the desired profile of the corner and such limitation would not lend patentability to the instant application absent a showing of unexpected results.

With respect to claims 38-39 and 43-44, note that the etchant gas is the dominant gas and the rounded corner is at an intersection of a wall of the trench and a surface intersecting the wall, the surface extending generally at right angles to the wall.
